"My personal philosophy of color is to express emotional meaning through color. I believe this is the purpose of art, to express the story of being alive at a particular time. Art is the physical manifestation of the emotional and spiritual nature of an artist's response to the world around them, and the world within them."

Class Description

As a group we will cover:

1. Color Theory

We will work from the book, The Philosophy of Color by Cathy Carey on these concepts:

1. Atmospheric Perspective (using color to add spacial depth)
 2. Using color to add meaning and mood
 3. Using color to create focal points
- Each student will be working in the medium of their choice.*

2. Composition

Discussion and exercises in creating good composition and how to communicate by your use of space, stroke and color.

Specific Techniques

1. Classic Techniques for each medium
2. Brushstrokes and making marks
3. Layering, glazes and transparent "see through" effects
4. Mixed Media effects
5. Plein air painting
6. Working from photographs

Painting Styles

This is the meat of the class! After the foundation of the first two topics we will zero in on making these concepts work as a personal style for you.

1. Painting on location
2. Painting from photos
3. Painting from memory which will include making sketchbook notes and keeping a journal for reference.
4. Combining styles to your best advantage

Plein Air Painting

Students are welcome to paint on location as much as possible, be prepared to paint outdoors in moderate weather. Bring sunscreen, hat, plenty of water, a tote bag for supplies and portable easel. You will need to carry your materials short distances. The classroom indoors is available during class and after hours as much as you want. Studio is cool and has folding chairs, several tables for watercolor or pastel, and bathroom. Bring your own easel. Area around studio has great things to paint.

Critiques

- Students will visit the galleries on Canyon Road and around the Plaza and collect several examples of artwork they like to bring back to a group critique.
- At the end of each day we will critique the work in progress and offer encouragement, constructive criticism and what to work on next.

This workshop allows for a lot of freedom, you can paint on location each day or in the studio. There will be exercises we do as a class, and students will have independent work time.

Individual Exercises

- Students will have time in class to work on all the exercises, and to experiment and paint on their own. The instructor, Cathy Carey will be on hand to work with each student on an area of their choice to give in-depth feedback and instruction.

Students will be challenged to explore specific concepts as they work. For example: work on location or in the studio and look for warm and cool color interactions - using the warm colors as the sunlight and the cool colors as the shadow. Another exercise can be to create depth by using warm colors to come forward and cool colors to go back. And in yet another exercise, create a focal point using opposites, light vs dark, warm vs cool brilliant vs neutral.

More advanced students wishing to have more independent study are not required to stay with class, and can work outdoors at locations of their choice, coming back to the studio for critiques.

Freedom

The class is designed to give everyone personal time to develop their style. Towards the end of the week if students want to drive to a location for a paint day - to Taos or Chimayo or just around Santa Fe - they can do that. Beforehand we will discuss how to structure the time and what concepts to work on. The principles of color theory and composition apply to all styles and mediums so students are not limited in any way.

All styles are supported and encouraged. All levels welcome. All mediums are taught.

Experimentation

Students can work in a single medium or combine mediums for exciting mixed media effects - collage and assemblage artists also welcome!

Enjoy a dynamic group environment where you will be encouraged to make lifelong friends through group activities inside and outside class!

Class Size

Classes are small with a minimum of four and a maximum of six students.

Supplies

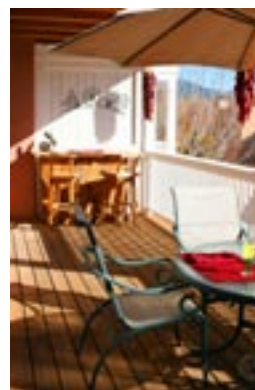

A supply list will be provided to students before the class starts. You can also bring additional brushes and colors. For students convenience, pre-packaged kits of the needed materials for each medium and additional supplies can be purchased at the workshop location. Pre-order your kit when you register and pay for the kit at the start of class. Kits available on a limited basis. Call for availability.

Getting There

The closest major airport to Santa Fe is in Albuquerque, NM. You can get a shuttle from the airport to Santa Fe for about $40 or rent a car and drive, approx. one hour, and scenic!

- It is possible and pleasant to get around Santa Fe without a car if you like to walk. Many hotels are within easy walking distance to many great restaurants of all price ranges, but if you want to venture out for painting locations you will need a car.

Side Trips

If you want to stay for longer than the workshop - you will not be disappointed for lack of things to do. I highly recommend a trip to Taos. There you can visit Taos Pueblo, www.taospueblo.com, and see the galleries and art community in Taos. On the way you can visit the famous church that is renowned as a healing shrine for heart, body and spirit, Santuario de Chimayo. It is known as the "Lourdes of America". Another place to visit on the way to Taos is Bandelier National Monument. Hundreds of ruins of Anasazi cliff houses and pueblo-style dwellings scattered across 70 miles of trails that provide access to these ancient ruins, including the cliff dwellings with cave paintings and Tuonyon village of Frijoles Canyon. Locally there are many trails for hiking and painting off upper Canyon Road.

Climate

At 7,000 feet above sea level, Santa Fe has really pleasant warm dry days and cool evenings. A jacket or sweater is advisable, even during the summer. Day temperatures reach an average high of 91 degrees F. during June & July. August is cooler.

Two-Miles of Art Galleries

Canyon road was once a residential area for early Spanish settlers. Artists began to flock to the area from all over the world in the 1920's transforming the residences into shops and galleries. Today this beautiful two-mile stretch of road is lined on both sides with upscale art galleries in charming adobe buildings surrounded by blooming and sculpture gardens.
